In response to your request for property-based environmental information regarding the above noted property, please be advised that a search of related departmental electronic databases has been conducted with the information provided, and the following information was found.

There is no record of Ministerial Orders or Remediation Orders related to this PID number.

Petroleum storage tank information related to PID # 00437772 is attached. These tanks have been registered with the Department, under the Petroleum Product Storage and Handling Regulation.

Our records indicate that there has been contamination found at 100 Mark Dr., Saint John Canada Bread Ltd. (PID# 00437772) See attached information report.

This PID number is not registered with the Department as a PCB Storage site.

We have no records of landfill sites or former dumpsites located near this PID number.

The absence of departmental records in this search does not necessarily indicate that the site has not been subject to environmental incidents. The information is accurate in that it provides a factual reflection of what is contained in departmental databases. The files themselves may or may not be complete.

As an example, in the case of underground petroleum storage tanks, the files accurately reflect all those that were registered with the program; there may be underground storage tanks that were not registered and of which the Department has no knowledge. Likewise, there may be incidents of spills of which the Department was not informed or which pre-date Departmental records. "Remediation Site Management System" was established in the early 2000's and does not contain a complete history of past spills or remediation efforts. Furthermore, if the properties have been recently altered, the PID numbers provided may not correspond with those contained in departmental files and thus on the databases.

Any persons intending to purchase or occupy the property should make their own independent determination of the environmental condition of the property and the extent of responsibility and liability, if any, that may arise from taking ownership or occupancy.
